

WEB SITE TERMS OF USE

Effective as of 12/15/11 _____

Welcome.

Welcome to this HealthPartners web site. By visiting or otherwise using this web site (“the Site”), you are agreeing to the following Terms of Use. These Terms are in effect as of the date shown above and may have changed since the last time you visited the Site. Please read these terms and conditions of use carefully before using the Site.

We may offer Site visitors the opportunity to participate in additional features or services through a HealthPartners website. Some of these features or services may require you to enter into other agreements or authorizations in addition to these Terms of Use before you can use those features or services.

Ownership of Site and reservation of rights

This Site is owned and operated by HealthPartners, Inc., or one of its affiliates, subsidiaries, or other related organizations. HealthPartners reserves all rights to the Site except those that we specifically give to you in these Terms of Use.

Changes in Terms of Use

We have the right to change these Terms of Use at any time. Any change is effective as soon as we post it to the Site. We will post the date of the latest change at the top of this Terms of Use page. If you use the Site after a change is posted, you are considered to have accepted the changes. You should visit and reread these Terms of Use often so you are up-to-date in what they say.

No Medical Advice

Information we provide on the Site is intended for general educational purposes and is not intended to be medical advice to you or any other person. You should always consult with your own medical provider about your health and medical questions and never rely on this or any other web site alone to make medical decision.

We specifically do not intend for you to interpret anything on this Site as advocating the self-management of your health or medical condition or used as a substitute for professional medical advice.

Never delay seeking medical advice or disregard any medical advice you have received from your provider because of anything you read on the Site.

Copyright and intellectual property

HealthPartners owns the copyright and other intellectual property for the Content of the Site. (“Content” includes text, graphics, images, and other material, and includes any software that permits you to visit or use the Site that we have developed or have a legal license to use). Neither you nor anyone else has or gets any right, title or interest in and to the Content by simply visiting or using the site.

If Content violates your copyrights

Under the terms of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act, if you send our “Designated Agent” (shown below) a notice that Content on our Site infringes your copyrights, we will promptly remove or disable access to the infringing Content.

A notice for this purpose must contain all of the following information:

- A physical or electronic signature of a person authorized to act on behalf of the owner of the right that you believe is being infringed.
- Identification of the copyrighted work that you believe is being infringed.
- A description of the Content that you believe is infringing and should be removed;
- Enough information so we can find the infringing Content on our Site;
- Enough information so that we can contact you, including your name, address, and telephone number and email address (or both);
- A statement that you believe in good faith that use of the material in the manner complained about is not authorized by the copyright owner, its agent, or the law; and
- A statement that the information in your notice is accurate and, under the penalty of perjury, that the complaining party is authorized to act on behalf of the owner of an exclusive right that is allegedly infringed.

When we receive a notice that has this information, we will remove or disable access to the content in question.

We will notify the source of the infringing content of your complaint and our actions. In some cases, if the source of the content provides us with additional information that convinces us that the content should not have been removed, we may reinstate it.

You may want to consult with a lawyer before filing a notice or responding to a notice filed by someone else.

Send the notice to our Designated Agent:
